

JAMES W. THOMAS
PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP

Mr. Thomas is the U.S. Advisory Aerospace & Defense Sector Leader and a Partner in the Government Contracts Practice of PricewaterhouseCoopers in Washington, DC. He specializes in the accounting and administrative requirements of government contracts. With 24 years of experience in the federal procurement rules, Mr. Thomas provides advice to clients on the requirements of the Federal Acquisition Regulation and Cost Accounting Standards. He provides expert accounting services to law firms representing clients involved in government contract disputes such as quantification of damages, defective pricing, cost recovery claims, labor charging, business purchase price disputes and other accounting disputes. He has provided expert testimony in cases involving cost disputes and in bid protest cases before the Government Accountability Office.

Mr. Thomas conducts training seminars for the public on government contracting topics including contract costs, internal auditing and financial accounting considerations. He is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and associate member of the American Bar Association. Mr. Thomas is co-author of "The Spearin Doctrine: The False Dichotomy Between Design and Performance Specifications" in the American Bar Association Public Contract Law Journal, Fall 1995, "Successful Transactions in the Defense Industry" in the Price Waterhouse Corporate Finance Issues Update, December 1996, "Suing a Government Special Considerations" in the text, Construction Disputes: Representing the Contractor, Copyright 2001 and "GSA's New Federal Supply Schedule Clause – Clarifications or Changes" in the PricewaterhouseCoopers Government Contracting Update publication, Winter 2003/2004. He is an instructor for George Washington University Law School's Government Contracts Program and for Federal Publications Seminars, LLC.

He has a Bachelor of Science in Accounting from the Pennsylvania State University and is a Certified Public Accountant in Virginia and the District of Columbia. Prior to joining PricewaterhouseCoopers, he was with McDonnell Douglas Corporation.